Ms. Armentrout said she relies on TASC for a number of residents as it helps with the cost of getting them to Boston for doctor's appointments.

Paula Wood asked where Ms. Armentrout thought it stood with the snow plowing and Easter Seal's not coming forward this year with the program. Ms. Armentrout discussed the volunteers and the company that came forward last year. She called each of the clients and gave them the option as she cannot give their information out. She said the person doing the plowing for Easter Seal's also came out a couple times as he was unaware that the money was not approved.

There was discussion on having a new human service agency come forward to do the same type of program and what the requirements would be. Ivan Eaton said he asked what other towns do if faced with the same situation as was told that no other towns do this. Ms. Wood explained how Easter Seal's got started doing this for the town.

Ms. Wood said when everyone talks about the tax rate being so high with new vehicles and things with the town they should be aware they also fund the human service agencies which help the residents. Ms. Armentrout said she works a lot with the agencies and depends on them. She said she has partnered the Community Table with the elderly food program so now when they go for a hot meal they will also leave with a bag of food as well.
